How To Travel The World For Less?

Travel is truly one of life's greatest joys, but it can also be one of its primary expenses. If you consider yourself to be something of a travel junky, you might well be keen to try and keep the expense of it to a minimum. This is something that is much easier said than done. Of course, nowhere is this more important than when you are hoping and planning for around the world trip all in one. That is the kind of event that takes a lot of planning in many other ways anyway. If you are keen to have this kind of trip in the near future, you will need to be aware of how you can make it as cheap as possible. As it happens, there are plenty of ways to do that. In this post, we will take a look at a number of them, so that you can get started on planning your cheap trip around the world.

Rent Out Your Home

A major expense when you are traveling is the accommodation, and anything you can do to reduce this is likely to be very welcome indeed. As it happens, there are a number of things you can do to make this cheaper or at least counteract the costs, and one of the most obvious is to do some kind of a swap of accommodation or merely rent out your home.

If you sign up to a site like Airbnb, you will be able to rent out your home on the days when you are not due to be there, and that will effectively pay for your accommodation costs for the same time. You might even be able to make more money this way and come out on top, which could either go towards other travel costs or just wait in your bank for your return home! In any case, this is a simple but powerful way to make traveling a bit more financially viable.

Volunteer

Sometimes you can get an opportunity to travel the world through some kind of program, and if that is a volunteer program of some kind then you should find that it effectively amounts to free travel. Of course, you will be expected to do some work. You will probably find that it can be quite difficult. It's certainly not a holiday but it's still one of the ways to see the world. All of this without paying a penny. You can sometimes find places where they pay you in food and board. That means that you will hardly have to pay anything at all even while you are there. These are certainly worth considering if you hope to see the world for less.

Hitchhike

This is a bit of a strange one. You can't really hitchhike absolutely anywhere you want, but you can get around much of the world this way, and at the very least being aware of it as a possibility is not a bad idea. If you have never hitchhiked before, you might find it a little frightening. It's true that you should take care, and especially if you are traveling solo or if you are young or female.

However, that doesn't mean that there are not trustworthy people out there. Generally, it's important to remember to try and give people a chance. If you want to hitchhike, exercise caution but give it a go. Remember too that there are different places around the world with different levels of safety. You should judge whether or not to do this based partly on the place you are in. Ultimately, it can be an exciting way to travel around the world and save some considerable cash on the actual transportation costs of doing so.

Use Vouchers

Here's one that a lot of people fail to remember before they go away. It might work towards saving you quite a lot of money. If you want to save money on hotels and flights for your travels, then you can always do so using voucher codes for those things.

You can get vouchers for many elements of travel these days, and they are easy enough to come by too. If you just take a look through somewhere like Net

Voucher Codes you will soon be able to find one or two options you can use for your travels which are likely to save you quite a lot of money. If you really want to go cheap, you could even work the other way around. Go on a voucher site or two, find the cheapest possibilities, and plan your world trip around those options. That will ensure that you have a cheap trip ahead of you, but probably still quite an exciting one too.

Get Free Upgrades

You might have heard stories from friends and relatives about how they managed to get hold of free upgrades for flights and hotels with just their charm alone. Even if you suspect that some of these stories might be a little exaggerated, the truth is that there are often many possibilities for getting free upgrades which you might want to consider, and you should certainly not feel that it is not a possibility for you on your world trip.

When it comes to the flights, you may get upgraded for free if it's your birthday. Similarly, when you go to a hotel, mention the possibility and see if they say anything. You won't always be lucky, but if you do it whenever you can then sometimes you will be.

As you can see, it is possible to travel the world in style and still hold on to your money.
